The National Healthcare Quality Report (NHQR) is an AHRQ-led effort on behalf of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). AHRQ has received input from numerous agencies and offices within DHHS on an ongoing basis. An interagency workgroup provided advice on the design of the report. AHRQ would like to acknowledge the generous contributions of the following agencies in the process of designing and producing the report.

- Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA)
- National Institutes of Health (NIH)
- Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS)
- Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)
- Food and Drug Administration (FDA)
- CDC-National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS)
- Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation, DHHS
- Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA)
- Indian Health Service

The development of this report also benefited from substantial input from other Federal partners, professional colleagues, private organizations, and concerned members of the public. The report was refined and improved through two rounds of public feedback between July and September 2002 and ongoing dialogue with other technical experts. We acknowledge some of the many organizations that have offered feedback on the report during its development.

- The Institute of Medicine committee, led by Drs. William Roper and Arnold Epstein, who developed the guidance report to AHRQ on the NHQR, Envisioning the National Healthcare Quality Report.
- The Quality Interagency Coordination Task Force (QuIC).
- The National Committee on Vital and Health Statistics.
- Interested Congressional staff, through a briefing to Senate Health and Labor staff in September 2002.
- Public hearing testimony to the National Committee of Vital and Health Statistics and AHRQ offered by: the American Medical Association, the American Hospital Association, the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations, and the Midwest Business Group on Health.
- State policymakers through organizations such as the National Association of Health Data Organizations, the National Academy of State Health Policy, and the National Governors Association.

Acknowledgments

- Institute of Medicine committee members for the IOM reports Bridging the Quality Chasm; Envisioning the National Health Care Quality Report; and Guidance for the National Healthcare Disparities Report.
- Members of the concerned public through a Federal Register notice for input on the proposed measures for the first NHQR, circulated August 19, 2002, and for home health care quality in the Federal Register on March 24, 2003.

We also acknowledge the many reviewers who volunteered their time and expertise in reviewing technical issues for this report.

Finally, we would like to acknowledge the leadership of the late Dr. John Eisenberg, former Director of AHRQ, Dr. Gregg Meyer, former Director of the Center for Quality Improvement and Patient Safety at AHRQ, and Dr. Tom Reilly, former Director for the National Healthcare Quality Report. Without their vision, this report would not have been possible.
